The Master of Mass Communication programme is one of the most in-demand graduate programmes of the Wee Kim Wee School. The curriculum exposes students to theory, research, and practice and how these can be applied to the workplace with an emphasis on or in Singapore and Asia. Many of our graduates have assumed leadership positions in the industry.

About the School

Located in Singapore, at the Nanyang Technological University, the Wee Kim Wee School of Communication and Information (WKWSCI) has the most comprehensive curriculum in Communication and Information Studies in Asia. The only full-fledged communication school in Singapore, WKWSCI is a world-class centre of excellence with an international faculty, state-of-the-art communication laboratories, and global institutional affiliations.

WKWSCI stewards an in-depth focus in research, generating empirical and humanistic analyses of communication topics and policy issues important not just to Singapore, but to the region and the world. With a talented team of faculty and research staff, the School undertakes a broad range of interdisciplinary research that spans across the diverse fields of communication and information.

WKWSCI establishes and maintains an international network of educators, researchers, and info-comm professionals through collaborative projects, conferences, and other exchanges. This includes attracting some of the very best minds in communication studies to the School.

Young and research-intensive, Nanyang Technological University (NTU Singapore) is ranked 12th globally. It is also placed 1st amongst the world’s best young universities.

The Master of Mass Communication programme is one of the most in-demand graduate programmes of the Wee Kim Wee School. The curriculum exposes students to theory, research, and practice and how these can be applied to the workplace with an emphasis on or in Singapore and Asia. Many of our graduates have assumed leadership positions in the industry.

About the School

Located in Singapore, at the Nanyang Technological University, the Wee Kim Wee School of Communication and Information (WKWSCI) has the most comprehensive curriculum in Communication and Information Studies in Asia. The only full-fledged communication school in Singapore, WKWSCI is a world-class centre of excellence with an international faculty, state-of-the-art communication laboratories, and global institutional affiliations.

WKWSCI stewards an in-depth focus in research, generating empirical and humanistic analyses of communication topics and policy issues important not just to Singapore, but to the region and the world. With a talented team of faculty and research staff, the School undertakes a broad range of interdisciplinary research that spans across the diverse fields of communication and information.

WKWSCI establishes and maintains an international network of educators, researchers, and info-comm professionals through collaborative projects, conferences, and other exchanges. This includes attracting some of the very best minds in communication studies to the School.

Young and research-intensive, Nanyang Technological University (NTU Singapore) is ranked 12th globally. It is also placed 1st amongst the world’s best young universities.
Programme Options

The Master of Mass Communication Programme has two options of study:

- Coursework Only – students are required to complete three core courses and seven General Electives.
- Coursework and Dissertation – students are required to complete three core courses, five electives, and complete a research project for which the student must submit a dissertation.

Each course carries 3 Academic Units (AU) while Dissertation comprises 6 AU. Candidates are required to complete a total of 30 AUs to graduate from either option.

Eligibility

The minimum requirement for admission is a good Bachelor’s degree in any discipline.

Preference, however, is given to those with:
- A good Bachelor’s degree in communication studies or its equivalent from a recognised university, and relevant working experience.
- A good Bachelor’s degree in other fields of study from a recognised university, and at least two years of relevant working experience.
- In addition, foreign students from Universities whose medium of teaching is not in English, English proficiency test e.g. TOEFL, IELTS, etc. is required.

Preference, however, is given to those with:
- A good Bachelor’s degree in communication studies or its equivalent from a recognised university, and relevant working experience.
- A good Bachelor’s degree in other fields of study from a recognised university, and at least two years of relevant working experience.
- In addition, foreign students from Universities whose medium of teaching is not in English, English proficiency test e.g. TOEFL, IELTS, etc. is required.

Application

Applicants for admission are normally invited through the press in early January for the academic year beginning in August. The School only accepts online applications in January/February for the August intake. More information is available at:

The Master of Mass Communication Programme has two options of study:

- Coursework Only – students are required to complete three core courses and seven General Electives.
- Coursework and Dissertation – students are required to complete three core courses, five electives, and complete a research project for which the student must submit a dissertation.

Each course carries 3 Academic Units (AU) while Dissertation comprises 6 AU. Candidates are required to complete a total of 30 AUs to graduate from either option.

Eligibility

The minimum requirement for admission is a good Bachelor’s degree in any discipline.

Preference, however, is given to those with:
- A good Bachelor’s degree in communication studies or its equivalent from a recognised university, and relevant working experience.
- A good Bachelor’s degree in other fields of study from a recognised university, and at least two years of relevant working experience.
- In addition, foreign students from Universities whose medium of teaching is not in English, English proficiency test e.g. TOEFL, IELTS, etc. is required.

Application

Applicants for admission are normally invited through the press in early January for the academic year beginning in August. The School only accepts online applications in January/February for the August intake. More information is available at:

The Master of Mass Communication Programme has two options of study:

- Coursework Only – students are required to complete three core courses and seven General Electives.
- Coursework and Dissertation – students are required to complete three core courses, five electives, and complete a research project for which the student must submit a dissertation.

Each course carries 3 Academic Units (AU) while Dissertation comprises 6 AU. Candidates are required to complete a total of 30 AUs to graduate from either option.

Eligibility

The minimum requirement for admission is a good Bachelor’s degree in any discipline.

Preference, however, is given to those with:
- A good Bachelor’s degree in communication studies or its equivalent from a recognised university, and relevant working experience.
- A good Bachelor’s degree in other fields of study from a recognised university, and at least two years of relevant working experience.
- In addition, foreign students from Universities whose medium of teaching is not in English, English proficiency test e.g. TOEFL, IELTS, etc. is required.

Application

Applicants for admission are normally invited through the press in early January for the academic year beginning in August. The School only accepts online applications in January/February for the August intake. More information is available at: